CURRENT POSITION

Since 10/2013 Associate Professor of Epidemiology (Maître de Conférences), Nutritional Epidemiology Research Group (EREN), CRESS Sorbonne-Paris-Cité, University of Paris XIII, Bobigny, France

PERSONAL STATEMENT

I am an epidemiologist interested in prevention of chronic, aging-related disorders (e.g., depression, cognitive decline and dementia, cancer, etc.) and behavioral health promotion especially via proper nutrition. I possess expertise in qualitative and quantitative epidemiological research methods, prevention/health promotion theory, nutrition assessment, dietary acculturation, immigrant health, and validation research. I teach Master's-level courses in epidemiology, nutrition, and public health, and am in charge of five modules (teaching units) within the Master of Human Nutrition and Public Health at the University of Paris XIII. I have published over 80 peer-reviewed journal articles and book chapters.
